WHAT MAKES THE FETS TOOL A FAVORITE WITH FIREFIGHTERS?

We've all heard the expression "A picture is worth a thousand words." In the fire service that expression could be tailored to say "Show Me... Don't Tell Me."

The FORCIBLE ENTRY TRAINING STATION (FETS®), designed by experienced firefighters and manufacturers of commercial storefronts, enables firefighters to repeatedly and systematically experience a through-the lock forcible entry procedure. The FETS® tool provides effective training because it is a prop designed to put actual forcible entry tools in the hands of firefighters. Skills can only be gained through hands-on training and repetition.

The FETS® tool simulates a typical storefront, complete with the locking mechanisms most frequently encountered by firefighters in real world scenarios. Participants are then able to actually pull the locking cylinder with their own equipment and defeat the revealed lock by manipulating the diverse locking mechanisms with a pick-tool. Firefighters experience firsthand how to use a "K", "A" or Officer's tool, a flat-headed ax and a halligan, or even hydraulic tools such as a "Rabbit" tool, Hydra-Ram or Port-A-Power. These tools are seldom used in training because they generally cause significant destruction. Most forcible entry training exercises consist of only one opportunity to open a lock or a door, therefore making it difficult for every firefighter to have a chance to familiarize themselves with the procedure. The FETS® Tool's unique construction allows for hundreds of forcible entry opportunities with no damage to the prop.

FORCIBLE ENTRY FETS® TRAINING STATION

You arrive at a scene of an automatic alarm. The building is locked. You have to make a decision. Do you wait until someone arrives to let you in, or do you forcibly enter the building?

TRAIN HERE...
TO MAKE IT SAFE OUT THERE!

CAN YOUR DEPARTMENT...

... Afford NOT to have a training station?
... And community afford the destruction that accompanies a forcible entry?
... Afford to protect your crews from danger?
